	DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF ADDITIONAL RAHS EXECUTIVE MEMBER
	Last review	July 2025

The Additional Executive Member plays a valuable supporting role within the RAHS Executive, contributing to leadership discussions, financial oversight, and strategic decision-making. While this position does not carry distinct responsibilities beyond those of other Executive members, it provides important leadership continuity and succession planning for key Executive roles, particularly the Treasurer.

The Additional Executive Member is expected to:

- Participate fully in Executive discussions and decision-making, contributing insights on governance, finance, and operations.
- Support the day-to-day leadership of the RAHS, including oversight of financial transactions and operational matters between Council meetings.
- Assist in reviewing budgets, financial reports, and key organisational policies.
- Contribute to the development of strategic initiatives and operational planning.
- Be prepared to take on additional responsibilities within the Executive if required, including stepping into other Executive roles on an interim basis.

This role is well-suited to individuals seeking to build their leadership experience within the RAHS and develop a deeper understanding of the Society’s governance and operations.
